GEORGE DICKINSON.

LONDON, January 11.

ON Wednesday last Sir Edward Hawke resigned his place as First Lord of the Admiralty, on account of his bad state of health. He actually waited on his Majesty on Tuesday, at St. James's, to request leave for that purpose, which was complied with, on condition of his continuing in office till a successor can be appointed.

The Governor of a neighbouring kingdom has at last, it is said, by unremitted endeavours, brought over to the interest of the crown, some of the principal opponents in Ireland; which has been communicated to the Ministry, and in consequence thereof, it is supposed the Parliament of Ireland will now be called together, before the time lately fixed by general report.

A correspondent says, "the silent enterprizes of the King of Prussia are more worthy the notice of government, than all the noise and parade of the French and Spaniards."

It is said that advice of a very interesting nature has been communicated by our Minister at Vienna, concerning some measures which the Emperor, who some time ago concerted them with the King of Prussia, is going to put in execution. It is believed, that the above relates to an intention in the court of Vienna to become possessed of some of the western provinces of Poland, in conjunction with the King of Prussia, who has an eye on some part of that country which borders on his territories.

JANUARY 12. We hear from good authority, that the Earl of Sandwich is to be appointed first Lord of the Admiralty, in the room of Sir Edward Hawke, who has resigned.

A coinage of silver is now actually begun at the Tower, and is carrying on briskly; which will be ready to issue out about April next.

It is remarked, that there never was known a greater quantity of base metal current than at present, scarce one shilling in ten being worth more than 8d.

JANUARY 25. Wednesday morning, at eleven o'clock, there was a very numerous and respectable meeting of the proprietors of East India Stock, at their house in Leadenhall-street, as by adjournment of the 19th of December last, for altering the 27th bye-law, in regard to raising the salaries of the Directors.

Sir George Colebrooke took the chair at twelve, and after the Clerk had, as usual, read over the proceedings of the last meeting, Peregrine Cust, Esq; as original proposer of the question, opened the Court, by observing, "That previous to his entering on the question, he thought it a duty he owed himself and the proprietary, to contradict some articles of intelligence levelled at him in the Public Papers, respecting his dealing uncandidly in the sale of some teas, Sept. 1769. He entered minutely into this affair, whereon he acquitted himself of the impeachment, and appealed to the Direction for their concurrent testimony. Having said thus much, he returned to the question under consideration, wherein he observed, that the present salaries of the Directors were very inadequate to their trouble and attention; for if what could be thought sufficient in King William's time, when the Company's affairs consisted of a few disjointed factories, surely, at the present very great distance of time, and the immediate opulent state of the company, must now be considered as insufficient; that one effect, amongst many others, of the trifling salary now allowed, was, that numbers of the Directors, in the summer months, were out of town; and that hence, very often, committees were wanting to do the necessary business. For these reasons he was, therefore, for the proposed augmentation, with this clause, that if any of the Directors should, for the future, absent themselves from the necessary business of their office, they should be subject to fines.

Mr. Fitzgerald seconded Mr. Cust, and added, "That it was a very hard thing such a number of respectable Gentlemen should be involved, the whole year round, in such complicated business, as the management of that great Company, for so paltry a sum as they at present enjoyed. He observed, it was a sum that one of their Brokers very often earned in half an hour. He, therefore, was for supporting the augmentation, with this distinction, of every Director's forfeiting one guinea on being absent on a General Court of Proprietors, and five guineas on a Committee; these fines to be annually laid before the Proprietary.

Sir James Hodges supported these Gentlemen in general, but said, though he was for the augmentation, he must oppose the addendum proposed by the honourable Seconder of the motion, of fining the Directors the specific sums mentioned by him. This, he observed, would be putting the Company upon the footing of an alefore Counting-house, and was beneath their dignity. However, he was for the Directors being obliged to do their duty; but then he would have that obligation consist in such amerciaments as the body of the Direction should think proper. He had heard it hinted, he said, that carrying this point would be productive of triennial direction; but this was begging the question, as he could not foresee how it led to it; that, for his part, he should be ever against representative duration in any body of people he belonged to; and if he had the least thought that the carrying the present question could any-way bring about the other, he would oppose it as heartily as he now espoused it.

Mr. Dempster then rose in opposition to the motion, and in a speech of near an hour long, equally replete with wit and observation, attacked on every side the impropriety of the measure.

He observed, it was very strange how this idea could first be conceived, when it was apparent to every one who only knew East-India affairs from common conversation, what numbers of respectable gentlemen were candidates every year for the Direction. I would be glad then to know, on what principle they do this? Surely, if they thought the salaries not adequate to the trouble, they would never search after it with such avidity. But to put this matter to a short issue, I will engage to fill the inside of the bar, at the present salaries, with gentlemen of unquestionable integrity, fortune, and abilities.

The gentleman who seconded this motion, (continued Mr. Dempster) has observed, that one of your brokers, in half an hour, shall earn as much money as the present annual salary of a Director. But what does that say? Why, Sir, no more than this, that after you augment the present salaries to the sum specified in the motion, they will amount to no more than what the same broker will earn in one hour; so that after all, the broker will have the advantage of you; but surely, Sir, it never was considered, that salary was the object of a Director of an East-India Company! No, Sir, when you come to make salary the only object, it will serve to recommend it as a morsel for government to snap at, and we shall have half the clerks of the public offices become Proprietors, and then farewel the independance and consequence of this company! I have now an author in my hand (continues Mr. Dempster, pulling out Montaigne) who speaks so judiciously on this subject, that was it not trespassing too far on the patience of the Proprietors, I would beg leave to read from him two or three passages; (the Proprietors calling out read, read) he read (from his place) to the following purport; "The man who holds public offices for public good, has every honour, every merit, in holding them, whilst those who are paid for their services, are little better than drudges, and may rank in a line with dancing-masters, fencers, pimps, and buffoons." Such is the language of the ingenious Montaigne, whom I accidentally dipt in the other day, and who speaks so strongly to my purpose, that one would be led to think, he had our present debate in view when he wrote it. As for the present Gentlemen behind the bar, I am satisfied money can have no influence on them, as they are all Gentlemen of independent fortunes, particularly the Hon. Chairman, who is in the possession of that fortune, that ranks him with the first in the city, and which is so very ample, and extensive, that I have often set down to compute it, but found it as difficult as adjusting an annual East-India account. Therefore, I can have no doubt, but this question will meet with as little countenance there, as from the body of the Proprietors."

The question then became general, and was spoken to by several Proprietors on both sides, with great spirit and argument, till near four o'clock, when the court divided.

The speakers on this occasion were, Sir G. Colebrooke, Bart. Sir Thomas Robinson, Sir James Hodges, General Smith, Mr. Creighton, Mr. Dempster, Mr. Fitzgerald, Mr. Salvadore, Mr. Orme, and Mr. Maclean.

LONDON, February 2.

Substance of the DEBATES, on laying before two Great Assemblies the DECLARATION of the SPANISH AMBASSADOR, and the Earl of ROCHFORD'S ACCEPTANCE of the said DECLARATION.

FRIDAY afternoon, January 25, the Right Honourable Lord NORTH, laid before the House of Commons, by his Majesty's command, the two following Papers.

TRANSLATION of the DECLARATION signed and delivered by Prince de Maserano, Ambassador Extraordinary from his Catholic Majesty, dated the 22d day of January, 1771.

HIS Britannic Majesty having complained of the violence which was committed on the 10th of June, 1770, at the island commonly called the Great Malouine, and by the English Falkland-Island, in obliging by force, the commander and subjects of his Britannic Majesty, to evacuate the port by them called Egmont; a step offensive to the honour of his crown;----the Prince de Maserano, Ambassador extraordinary of his Catholic Majesty, has received orders to declare, and declares, that his Catholic Majesty, considering the desire with which he is animated for peace, and for the maintenance of good harmony with his Britannic Majesty, and reflecting that this event might interrupt it, has seen with displeasure, this expedition tending to disturb it; and in the persuasion in which he is, of the reciprocity of sentiments of his Britannic Majesty; and of its being far from his intention to authorize any thing that might disturb the good understanding between the two courts; his Catholic Majesty does disavow the said violent enterprize;----and in consequence, the Prince de Maserano declares, that his Catholic Majesty engages to give immediate orders, that things shall be restored in the Great Malouine, at the port called Egmont, precisely to the state in which they were before the 10th of June, 1770; for which purpose his Catholic Majesty will give orders to one of his officers, to deliver up to the officer, authorized by his Britannic Majesty, the port and fort called Egmont; with all the artillery, stores, and effects of his Britannic Majesty, and his subjects, which were at that place, the day above-named; agreeable to the inventory which has been made of them.

The Prince de Maserano declares, at the same time, in the name of the King his master, that the engagement of his said Catholic Majesty, to restore to his Britannic Majesty, the possession of the fort and port called Egmont; cannot, nor ought any wise, to affect the question of the prior right of sovereignty of the Malouine islands, otherwise called Falkland's islands. In witness whereof, I the under-written Ambassador extraordinary have signed the present declaration with my usual signature, and caused it to be sealed with our arms. London, the Twenty-second day of January, One thousand seven hundred and seventy-one. (L. S.) Signed

Le Prince de MASERANO.

TRANSLATION of the Earl of Rochford's ACCEPTANCE, dated the 22d day of January, 1771, of the Prince de Maserano's declaration of the same date.

HIS Catholic Majesty having authorized the Prince of Maserano, his Ambassador extraordinary, to offer, in his Majesty's name, to the King of Great-Britain, a satisfaction for the injury done to his Britannic Majesty, by dispossessing him of the port and fort of Port Egmont; and the said Ambassador having this day signed a declaration, which he has just delivered to me, expressing therein, that his Catholic Majesty being desirous to restore the good harmony and friendship which before subsisted between the two crowns, does disavow the expedition against Port Egmont, in which force has been used against his Britannic Majesty's possessions, commander, and subjects; and does also engage that all things shall be immediately restored to the precise situation in which they stood before the 10th of June, 1770. And that his Catholic Majesty shall give orders, in consequence, to one of his officers, to deliver up to the officer, authorized by his Britannic Majesty, the Port and Fort of Port Egmont; as also all his Britannic Majesty's artillery, stores, and effects, as well as those of his subjects, according to the inventory which has been made of them. And the said Ambassador having moreover engaged, in his Catholic Majesty's name, that what is contained in the said declaration, shall be carried into effect, by his said Catholic Majesty; and that duplicates of his Catholic Majesty's orders to his officers, shall be delivered into the hands of one of his Britannic Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, within six weeks. His said Britannic Majesty, in order to shew the same friendly dispositions on his part, has authorized me to declare, that he will look upon the said declaration of Prince de Maserano, together with the full performance of the said engagement, on the part of his Catholic Majesty, as a satisfaction for the injury done to the Crown of Great-Britain. In witness whereof, I the under-written, one of his Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, have signed these presents with my usual signature, and caused them to be sealed with our arms. London, the 22d day of January, 1771.

ROCHFORD.

After the clerk had read the papers,

Lord North said, when the merits of the Spanish declaration came under the examination of the House, he would avow the part he had taken in the negotiation.

Mr. Dowdeswell moved, that all the papers, letters, instructions to our ministers, &c. &c. relative to the taking Falkland's Island, and the negotiation with Spain upon the subject, might be laid before the House.

Lord North consented; only he desired the papers might be moved for in three distinct motions, instead of being all included in one.

Mr. Dunning made an objection as to the distinction, between one motion and three, for the same thing.

Mr. Dowdeswell agreed to Lord North's request.

Mr. Dyson made an objection about some words in the motion, conveying (as he said) a meaning contrary to a part of the King's speech at the opening of the present session.

Colonel Barré shewed, that the words objected to, were copied exactly from the King's speech. He called the Spanish declaration scandalous and infamous; dishonourable to the crown, and disgraceful to the nation. He said, when the merits of this declaration came under examination, he should speak fully to it; for he had much to say upon it, and should therefore reserve himself for that day. But at present he could not help observing, that there was not a man in England who did not condemn that declaration. What, four months arming! and four months negotiating! and is this all!----The noble Lord (Lord North) said in this House before the holidays, that Spain should pay a part of the expence we have been at, in making preparations to resent the insult. But there is not a word of the expence in the declaration. The enemy was not ignorant of the weakness and cowardly dispositions of the ministers. The enemy know you dare not go to war (to Lord North) and therefore refuse to make us any satisfaction. There is not an honest man in England, who does not abhor the present set of ministers. There is not a petty Prince in Europe, who does not laugh at, and despise them. Thus it is in the power of any individual to put us to an enormous expence, and our ministers dare not avenge the affront. They dare not go to war, because they are afraid they shall lose their places. Thus the nation is exposed to insults abroad; and it is left a prey to jobbers and sharpers at home. A French Secretary, being in your secrets, has made near half a million of money by gaming in your funds.* And some of the highest among yourselves, have been deeply concerned in the same scandalous traffic. But a day of reckoning will come. This country cannot be in quiet, while every thing that is dear and valuable to the people, is thus ravished from them.

Lord North denied that he had ever said Spain should pay a part of the expence. He declared, that he could not have said so, because he had never entertained the least idea of making such a demand.

Mr. Charles Fox said, he did not remember the noble Lord to have made use of any such words.

Colonel Barré said, he had not trusted to his own memory only, for his account of that fact. He had asked several other members, who also remembered the words.

Mr. Burke said, he remembered the words. He condemned the declaration in very severe terms. He called it scandalous, infamous, and treacherous. He said, the nation would demand the blood of those who made it. Nothing else could---nothing else would satisfy.----This declaration, this wisdom, this spirit of the Ministry, this vindication of the honour of the Crown, this security of the rights of the subject, which all lie in a nut-shell, has cost the nation above two millions of money! The Land-Tax was prematurely voted; an additional army of 13,000 men have been voted, and they must all be paid; a great number of ships have been put into commission, at a great expence to the public; and all this for what? Why, to procure that scandalous, base, and dishonourable declaration that lies upon the table.------The Ministers made no reply.

The same day the Earl of Rochford laid before the House of Lords the said Declaration and Acceptance. After the reading, the Lords in the Administration sat silent without saying any thing on the subject; whereupon

The Duke of Manchester observed, that such silence was extraordinary; that though upon the face of the declaration it appeared very inadequate and insufficient, yet he would form no final judgment without further information, and therefore made a motion similar to that which on the same day had been made in the House of Commons, in substance being, that all the information which had been received by Administration, of the designs of Spain upon Falkland's-Islands, and the papers that passed in the subsequent negotiation for the reparation of that injury, should be laid before the house.

Lord Rochford, with great candour said, he wished every information relative to this matter, to be laid before the house, and should not therefore oppose the motion, but would add a few words to it, to restrain it to the business of Falkland's-Islands, which he thought was not sufficiently guarded in the words of the motion.

Lord Sandwich was not satisfied with this, and altered the amendment.

The Duke of Richmond observed, that Lord Sandwich's words were moved evidently on the ground of some reservation; that the motion confined the enquiry to the business of Falkland's-Islands, which ought to be the only restriction, and therefore the amendment was unnecessary, or meant something that it should not.

Lord Radnor said, that Lord Rochford had first moved the amendment, there was no harm in it, though it was unnecessary; but he suspected something, since Lord Sandwich had altered it.

Lord Sandwich then said, his amendment, instead of narrowing, enlarged the question.

Lord Chatham remarked, that this generosity, in giving more than was asked, was very suspicious; that if Administration had no objection to what was asked, why not give it without making any alteration in the motion? People would suspect that something was meant to be kept back. He said he would not go into the matter of the declaration, but that upon the face of it, it appeared to be an ignominous compromise. It was no satisfaction, no reparation. The right was not secured; and even the restitution was incomplete; that Port Egmont alone is restored, not Falkland's-Islands.

Lord Lyttleton earnestly advised the Administration, for their own sakes, not to create suspicions; that they ought to begin to inspire the people with some confidence; the want of which was the great defect of the present age.

Lord Camden said, the defence of the amendment proved there was something meant by it.

Lord Rochford then finding that his plain meaning lost all credibility and effect, by Lord Sandwich's having meddled in it, withdrew his amendment, and the original motion was agreed to, without alteration.

The Duke of Richmond said, he had another motion to make. That which had been agreed to would bring out all the negotiation with Spain; but as the world had strange suspicions that France had too much to do in this transaction, it was necessary to clear this matter, and therefore moved for the papers that had passed between our Ministers and those of France in this negotiation.

Lord Rochford said, he had agreed to giving the other papers, because they existed; but must object to these, because no such were in being.

The Duke of Richmond said, that, though he would not dispute the credibility of Lord Rochford, the nation ought not to take the word of any Minister. Let the motion go: If no such papers existed, the King would say so, and then the King's word, which every body must believe, would be pledged; but if any negotiation with France had been carried on, it was fit the public should see it, and punish those concerned, for it would be giving efficacy to the family compact.

As to the declaration, he said he could not leave the room without making one observation upon it, which was distinct from all information that the papers might produce; and it was, that he wondered any Minister should dare accept, in the King's name, a declaration in which the right of sovereignty of the island is brought into dispute; that in the time he was in administration, the Spanish Ambassador had attempted to make it a matter of discussion; but that he, and he believed all other Ministers to this day, had never suffered it to be so much as made a matter of doubt.

Lord Chatham strongly supported the Duke of Richmond's motion. He said, that society should never take the word of a Minister; that the refusing this motion shewed that some transactions with France had passed, perhaps not papers or memorials. As Lord Rochford said none had passed he believed him; but that France had interfered, he said, he knew to be a fact that could not be denied.

Lord Rochford got up again, but made no answer to this part of Lord Chatham's charge of verbal communication and negotiation with France. He said he would answer all other charges when the day of examination should come.

The Earl of Suffolk then got up, and said, he had the utmost confidence in the Ministry; that as they said no negotiation with France had passed, he thought that assurance fully satisfactory.

[* It is said Mr. Francois, Secretary to the French Ambassador, has realized above Half a Million in the Alley. The Spanish Minister had orders to sign the Declaration at least six days before he did. Francois, and others, knew this. They duped their friends, Touchet, &c. who wanted to get intelligence. Br-d-how has likewise lost considerably. There were six tame Ducks on Thursday last.]

The Duke of Richmond repeated, that the nation had a right to more; that the King's word alone would ſatisfy them; that he would have the Miniſters ſhew the whole of their conduct to the public; if right they would receive their thanks; but for his part, while they purſued their preſent ſyſtem of oppreſſion at home, and meanneſs to foreign powers, he would never alter his oppoſition to them.

The majority over-ruled the queſtion.

WILLIAM RAMPERILD.

WANTED, as an Apprentice to the Printing Buſineſs, an honeſt, ſober Lad, that can read and write tolerably well. Apply to CHARLES CROUCH.

To be ſold by private Sale,

A PLANTATION or TRACT of LAND, on the Eaſt Branch of Saltcatcher River, in St. Bartholomew's Pariſh, containing One Thouſand Acres; buting and bounding on Lands of Thomas Ferguſon, Eſq; and about a Mile from two very large Rice Plantations, owned by Mr. Inglis, of Charles-Town, and William Roper, Eſq; and not exceeding four Miles from James Donnom, Eſq'r's.

It appears by a Survey lately made, that there is about Six Hundred Acres of the One Thouſand, prime Rice Land, and the moſt Part of the Remainder good Proviſion Land. There is Seventy Acres of the Swamp Land cleared, alſo Forty Acres of the Proviſion Land, and under good Fence.

The moſt Part of the Swamp Land that is cut down, has been planted for ſome few Years paſt, and it is thought to be not more than thirteen Miles from this Plantation to the Landing that is now made uſe of, and a very clear Probability of the Landing being four or five Miles nearer, as the Tide flows about this Diſtance farther up the River than where the Landing is at preſent.

There is Five or Six Hundred Buſhels of Proviſion at the above Plantation, which will be diſpoſed of to the Purchaſer, if agreeable.——On ſaid Plantation is a very good Barn on Cills, 40 by 20 Feet, a very good Overſeer's Houſe, Negro Houſes, &c. For further Particulars, apply at the Horſe Shoe, to THOMAS JONES, ſen.
